5) Department of Chemistry

Introduction to Water Quality Measurement Course Syllabus

Course Title: Introduction to Water Quality Measurement
Dept: Department of chemistry, Mungasaji Maharaj Mv, Darwha.
Dates: 27 Aug 2018 to 3 Oct 2018
Times: 10.30 to 11.30 AM
Location: Chemistry laboratory / classroom

COURSE INSTRUCTORS - Dr N.A. Rashidi, Prof. P.H. Bhagwat
ASSISTANT - Gajanan R. Mantute

Course Description:

This course introduces students to standard water quality methods used and applies them to rural Darwha. Students will become familiar with EPA water quality standards and programs that help to preserve water quality in rural communities. Key topics covered include: stream ecology, wastewater management, stormwater runoff, and data analysis.

Instructional Methods

The course will be taught using a combination of lectures, laboratory analysis, field experiences and homework assignments. Laboratory and field sessions are intended to provide opportunity for students to conduct water quality sampling, testing, and data recording with special attention to quality assurance in dissolved oxygen, pH, temperature, conductivity, and turbidity. Lectures cover topics that will allow students to accurately collect data under the guidelines of water quality standards and report information.

Course Objectives:

- Identify the major types of water pollution and its effects on aquatic ecosystems
- Identify the ways in which humans influence aquatic systems
- Learn to use Excel spreadsheets for data entry and plotting
- Perform standard water quality analysis on a local stream (DO, pH, T, EC, and turbidity)
- Discuss and list ways to reduce water pollution
- Perform a literature search on stream water quality
- Complete a water quality report based on work completed in this course

Course Schedule (example: course could be taught over a number of time periods)
